Republican National Ticket.

For President,

BENJAMIN HARRISON.

For Vice-President,

WHITELAW REID.

Harrison and Reid.

The great contest is over and the result is one which will meet with the full approval of the country at large, as is shown by the numerous dispatches sent to Minneapolis from our great business centers urging the re-nomination of President Harrison.

The feeling is wide-spread that there is nothing experimental about a campaign with him as leader. Even his bitterest enemies find remarkably little chance for adverse criticism, and it was only personal ambition and mistaken friendship for Blaine that fought against him. His administration has been clean, able, and in accord with the fundamental principles of the Republican party, and the general indorsement given it by the various state conventions showed the universal satisfaction it engendered. The fact that so many delegations were left uninstructed, goes to show the growing aversion to machine politics and the desire that delegates might be free to do whatever their judgment should dictate as the best policy at the last moment. That the decision was for Harrison, in spite of the sharp contest made against him, is a telling argument in favor of his administration.

Jas. G. Blaine's many admirers will always believe that he meant just what he said in his February letter and if, at the last moment, he consented to have his name go before the convention, it was because he was made to believe that greater unanimity could thus be secured than by any other action. That it was a grand mistake is now clearly apparent, as also that the men who led the Blaine boom were playing a desperate game in their own interests, hoping to succeed by virtue of his great popularity. Now that the matter is settled the Blaine men are all expressing their intention to work for the nominee and so present an unbroken front to the enemy next November.

The eloquent Chauncey M. Depew called attention to an important truth when he said, "Not since Thomas Jefferson has any administration been called upon to face and solve so many or such difficult problems as those which have been exigent in our conditions. No administration, since the organization of the government, has ever met difficulties better or more to the satisfaction of the American people." Then, recurring to the question, "To whom does the credit of this belong?" he refers to the months when the Secretaries of State and Treasury were both ill and the President assumed the duties of both with marked success, adding that the great results of the administration were largely due to "the suggestive mind, the indomitable courage, the intelligent appreciation of situations, and the grand magnanimity of Benjamin Harrison."

The nomination of Whitelaw Reid for second place on the ticket brings it such added prestige as may be given by a highly educated, cultured gentleman who, through his connection with the New York Tribune and his position of Minister to France has gained a world-wide reputation for ability and integrity, as well as a general knowledge of mankind that is of infinite advantage to any one standing a possibility of being called upon to guide our Ship of State.

His nomination is also a concession to the state of New York and therefore is a good move politically. Altogether, we think Republicans have an encouraging outlook and good reason for thinking that it will be easier to re-elect Harrison than it was to elect him in 1888.

Convention Notes.

Clarkson, Quay, Platt & Co. are politically bankrupt.

"Col. Gavette" may be a very reliable friend of Blaine's, but he has certainly proven a very false prophet.

In spite of the loud shouts of the Michigan delegation, Alger was not "in it."

Burly Tom Reed is said to have been the jolliest looking man in the convention.

Each appearance of Chairman McKinley was the signal for a burst of applause.

The convention of '92 is the first one to put itself on record in favor of bimetalism.

The hustling Flour City seems to have cared for its numerous guests in first-class style, and both Minnie and Paul were kept too busy in attending to the comfort of the delegates, to engage in the usual number of disputes over their respective rights in the case.

The utterly unreliable nature of most of the ante-nomination predictions with which our papers were filled, is illustrated by an extract from a Minneapolis special in Friday's Detroit Tribune which reads as follows:—"Looking over the field from a practical business and political standpoint, it is now certain that Blaine will have a majority of the delegates on the first ballot."

When all the electric lights but one went out in Convention Hall last Thursday night, leaving the vast audience of 12,000 people almost in total darkness, it was a very appropriate thing for the band to strike up "We won't go home till morning" and created prolonged applause.

The newspaper men of the country were most luxuriously quartered at Minneapolis, the magnificent New York Life Insurance building having been transformed into a temporary journalistic hostelry, with a finely equipped cafe in the basement and every convenience that could gladden the editorial heart.

The committee on resolutions is said to have had as much difficulty in convincing Judge Tourgee that the lynching of colored men in the South was a matter for state jurisdiction with which the general government could not interfere, as did Mr. Blaine in persuading Baron Fava that the United States government was not responsible for the Italian lynchings in New Orleans.

Probably no assembly of people has ever been more fully surcharged with intense and pent-up emotion than was the great convention at the moment when J. Sloat Fassett began calling the roll of honor for the chosen heroes of the Republican party—an emotion that exhausted itself in a perfect cyclone of applause as the young chairman dextrously completed the list with the names of "Harrison and Blaine" so coupled by one impulse of the voice as to seem twin giants of equal strength in the political arena. It was a great stroke of policy that will often be quoted as a brilliant example of making the best of an awkward situation.

The gloomy, threatening, cloudy weather which prevailed at the opening of the great convention, and the sudden burst of sun-shine that brightened the face of every delegate soon afterward, may be typical of the general harmony that will prevail in Republican ranks as soon as the fogs of misrepresentation and clouds of personal resentment formed by the exciting events of the nomination, shall have been dissipated by the sun-light of wisdom and moderation that is the chief vitalizing force of our glorious Republic.

The New Platform.

The Republican platform of '92 devotes much less space than usual to glittering generalities, and its most salient points are a declaration in favor of protection and reciprocity; of bimetalism and honest money; of a free ballot and fair count; of the extension of our foreign commerce, the protection of our fisheries, and the restoration of our merchant marine; of more stringent laws for the regulation of immigration, and the extension of free delivery service to our rural communities; of the earliest possible admission of our remaining territories, and the ceding of arid public lands to the states and territories in which they lie, and of the construction of the Nicaragua canal. It denounces the Southern outrages, opposes a union of church and state, and declares against capital combines, while it sympathizes with all legitimate efforts against intemperance, asks Congress to aid the Columbian Exposition, recognizes the claim of the veteran soldier upon a grateful people, and, lastly, commends the "able, patriotic, and thoroughly American administration of President Harrison."

Van Buren Co. Legislative District.

Van Buren County comprises one Legislative District instead of two as heretofore. The Democratic majority of the last session of the Legislature, desiring to do everything possible, fair or otherwise, to perpetuate the control of the party and hoping thereby to make possible the election of a Democrat as United States Senator, took the representation from Republican sections of the state like Lenawee, Hillsdale, Eaton, Montcalm, Van Buren, and other counties, placing it in (as they believe) safely Bourbon territory like Wayne, Saginaw, and Kent.

Notwithstanding the extremely partisan character of this Legislative gerrymander, and in spite of the Herculean efforts of the leaders to make it appear that they are honest in their assumptions and asseverations that the party in power is a party of reform, the people are not to be hoodwinked thereby, and the signs of the times point unmistakably to their overthrow in November next. The re-nomination of President Harrison and the prospective naming of that sturdy Republican, John T. Rich, to head the state ticket, insures a magnificent victory at the polls this fall.

The new district including the whole of Van Buren county with its more than 30,000 population, a people at once loyal, patriotic, and intelligent, should be represented by a man of experience, of large and favorable acquaintance, of strong personality, and embodying those characteristics which attract and secure the hearty co-operation of those with whom he may come in contact in furtherance of those measures in which he may interest himself in behalf of his district, or the entire state.

The NORTHERNER believes that the Hon. C. L. Eaton is such a man and, believing this, presents his name to the public for nomination as the Republican candidate for the Legislature, and will support him through its columns to the extent of its ability. Mr. Eaton's Republicanism and fidelity to Republican principles cannot be questioned. He always has his choice of candidates, but is invariably for the nominees of the conventions.

Talks with a large number of Republicans from various parts of the county, confirm us in the opinion that Mr. Eaton is the choice of the party for the office mentioned. We are sure no better selection could be made; we are confident none other will be.

Chairman Clarkson sums up the causes that defeated Blaine as follows:—"His resignation from the cabinet at the crisis of the situation cost him at least fifty votes; his refusal to furnish his friends in the convention with a formal pledge of his candidacy, prevented scores of delegates from espousing his cause; and a consideration as strong as, if not stronger than any of these, was the question of his health." Whatever the cause, and whatever the result, his personal popularity remains, and his name will go down the ages among the foremost statesmen the world has ever seen. Senator Hale spoke the truth when he said, "It does not require an election to the presidency to add anything to the laurels of Jas. G. Blaine."

One Minneapolis delegate of last Saturday says, "The famous twenty-two of Michigan who voted for McKinley of Ohio, are hustling about the sweltering Flour City endeavoring to explain why they came here. The gallant seven who help to nominate Harrison, are directing their energies exclusively to having a good time and are not averse to vigorous walking around to quickstep music whenever they encounter the jubilant assembly of their fellow patriots."

Now that the Detroit Tribune has Alger off its hands, it can devote its energies exclusively to the Pingree boom, though we hope it will not attempt any more tricks like that it played when it quoted one Frank Hine of Grand Rapids as a Republican who thought that Kent county would show a decided Pingree element, though the Lowell Journal shows that Hine is a candidate for nomination as Judge of Probate on the Democratic ticket.

As New York is counted a pivotal state in the coming election, it is a significant fact that in 1888 Harrison received 96,754 more votes than did Blaine in 1884, in fact the largest vote ever polled in the Empire state by a Republican.

THE

JOE GAVIN,

No. 564.

Is sired by Messenger Duroc, No. 106, one of the best sons of Hambletonian. His dam is the great brood mare Fanny Mapes, by Alexander's Abdallah, No. 15. Fanny Mapes is the dam of five with an average of 2:28½, besides being the dam of six producing sons. No other brood mare living or dead can make such a showing.

Who says Joe Gavin does not sire speed? He is sired by Offie Drake 2:25; Walter Drake 2:24½; Fred Drake 2:27½; and Cora Bell 2:29½. No horse ever stood for service in Van Buren county that is the sire of as many colts in the '30 list at the same age as Joe Gavin.

To those who desire breeding road horses at a profit, they will serve their own interests to look Joe Gavin over individually, scrutinizing his colts carefully, and last, though not least, see if his colts have the characteristics we claim for them, viz.: They have solid colts; are upbeamed, stylish and game; have smooth skin and good action and a disposition that subjects itself to the control of man. Can any one doubt that a horse 2 to 3 years old with the above qualifications will find a ready sale in any market at a profit to the breeder? Remember, it is past the time when fashionable breeding will sell a horse for a good price, if the individual excellence of that horse is not up to its breeding.

JOE GAVIN will make the season of 1892 at the William House barn.
